Katja Schleicher is known for her sharp witty way to deal with communication disasters. Small and big, made by her clients from industries from big banking, conservative pharma, to ambitious startup. She gives Communication & Public Speaking Trainings and is a Business Storytelling Evangelist & Consultant in intercultural communication matters. She knew at an early stage that talking is gold and silence the beginning of all troubles.

After 15 successful years in Corporate Communications for technology companies she started teaching & speaking on that subject. True European by heart, she has two passports and trains in three languages. In Europe and all over the rest of the world.
